Board Picks O'Donnell

While they folded student recruitment letters, Central board voted in favor of Walter O'Donnell, Havre, for business manager for the all-school opera.

They also tentatively decided to get Duke Ellington's band for March 27, 1952, and discussed the possibility of making a color movie of MSU.

O'Donnell, former student and ASNMC business manager of Northern Montana college at Havre, was recommended for the job by ASMSU business manager Harvey Schliehman, Missoula. His responsibility will be spending the $3,000 for the production of "La Boheme."

National Heart association will probably have a drive in February, providing CB can select a manager to conduct the drive. So far, four other big drives have been given permission to solicit funds: Red Cross, World Student Service fund, Cancer, and Polio.

Duke Ellington Considered

Partly because of a constitutional bylaw and partly because of an uninterpreted federal tax law, plans to contract Duke Ellington to play at MSU for the first Thursday in spring quarter will be voted on at the next meeting. Ellington, famous for such pieces as Mood Indigo, Solitude, and Sophisticated Lady has several acts with his band. The King Cole trio is probably the best known.

Law Adds Complications

If the new tax law applies to this entertainment, Bill Reynolds, ASMSU president, said, we will have to make $2,500 to come out in the clear. About 1,400 persons would have to buy tickets. There is only $125 in the buffer fund after the loss was deducted for the Ray Anthony dance, he said.

Ray Hoffman, Helena, said that the poor turnout for Anthony's band however, was because of the short time in which to prepare publicity and because Ray Anthony's name isn't as well known as Ellington's. With three months to prepare publicity, Hoffman thought it looked like a good deal.

Plan Movie on MSU

Bill Jones, Miles City, sophomore delegate, outlined a plan for promotional purposes that would record MSU in a 20-minute technical movie with a sound track for about $450.

Ted Hewett, Great Falls, said he would be the photographer, providing he would get a duplicate reel of the film when it is completed; that MSU would provide the $140 for film and $112 for expenses; and that CB would give him the nod by Jan. 15. Bill Jones would write the narrative script, seeking advice and counsel from MSU officials.

Cost Runs High

The sound track would come to $100 and each additional reel made to be sent around to high schools would cost $100. To have the same original work done by a commercial photographer would come to around $2,000. The movie should be completed by spring quarter in 1953.

Constitutional revision has been put off until after vacation.

Seal Purchases Reported as Slow

A check on the TB Christmas seal sale in the Student Union store yesterday afternoon showed that only twenty, 25-cent envelopes of seals have been sold.

Most of the TB seals were sold yesterday when the Spurs sold them at a table between the store and cafeteria. The original plan was to sell the seals at the book store, but so few were sold on Monday and Tuesday that the Spurs set up a table to handle the sales.

The seals will be sold in $1; 50 cent; and 25 cent envelopes today and tomorrow.

Yule Sales Aid CA Fund

Over $250 will go into the Student Christian association general fund as a result of Christmas card sales this year, Don Cameron, Miles City, said yesterday.

Danny Lambros, Missoula, and Cameron were the principal salesman for the association. They sold more than 200 boxes to the halls, sororities and fraternities.

They received cards from seven different manufacturers and consider their sales good. However, next year a larger program is planned, Cameron said.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

The English department received a questionnaire from Washington and Lee University asking for some of the slang expressions used here and their meanings.

Air ROTC Doubles Size

Air Force ROTC has nearly doubled its number of training cadets over last year, "Air Force Times" reported. The addition of 62 new units and expansion of others accounts for this.

Enrollment numbered 60,000 cadets midway in the 1950-51 academic year. Approximately 110,000 are now signed up. Of these 90,000 are in basic ROTC.

Air Force ROTC now has units operating at 187 colleges. Last year units operated at 125 colleges.

The largest number of cadets are studying administration and logistics, but the paper said no figures were available.

The Air Force has stated that 1,100 advanced cadets, graduating between Jan. 1 and March 23, will report for active duty early next year, the paper reported.

Committee Tabs Spangler, Logan As Montana Rhodes Candidates

Stanley Spangler, Billings, and Francis Logan, Charlo, were selected yesterday by the state Rhodes committee to represent Montana at the district competition in Spokane on Saturday. They will compete with 10 other delegates from Washington, Oregon, North Dakota, Wyoming, and Idaho for the four scholarships to Oxford university granted in this district.

Spangler of MSU, a transfer from Linfield college, McMinnville, Ore., in his second year, is president of the International Relations club. He is a member of Scabbard and Blade, Phi Alpha Theta, Kappa Tau, and the Montana Forum committee. His major is political science.

Man From Chicago

Logan, resident of Charlo, is attending the University of Chicago. He has a B.A. from the University of Chicago with no major and is now in the law school. He is president of the student government, representative to the national student association, and is president of the senior honor society at the University of Chicago.

Selection of the Rhodes candidates is on the basis of intellect, character, leadership and physical vigor, according to Dr. H. G. Merriam, secretary of the state Rhodes committee. The other two members of the committee are Paul S. Gillespie, Missoula, chairman, and J. R. Thomas, Butte.

Two Years of Study

Winners of the scholarship are given two years of study at Oxford in any field or toward any degree offered there. The regular stipend of the scholarship is 400 pounds per year, which is at present augmented by an extra 100 pounds, making a total of 500 pounds per year. In addition to the benefits derived from study at Oxford, the scholarships are prized for the opportunity they provide for travel in the British Isles and on the Continent during vacation periods.

Sterling Soderlind, Billings, and Joseph English, Anaconda, are Montana Rhodes scholars studying at Oxford at the present.

Clark Suggests Language Classes

W. P. Clark, the dean of the graduate school, made the following announcement this week in regards to organizing a non-credit French or German class:

"I shall be on vacation winter quarter, 1952. I wish to do some experimental teaching and learning of a foreign language. There are, I am sure, students and members of the faculty who want to learn either French or German and cannot afford to take either in a university class for credit. Will all such members of the university community, whether students or faculty members, please speak to me at an early date with a view to organizing a class for the study of French or German."

Annual Christmas SOS Tonight

The traditional Christmas Singing on the Steps will get underway tonight when the tower bell summons students to Main hall.

George Stone, Missoula, SOS chairman, will lead the singing, and Boyd Swingley, Missoula, will be accompanying pianist.

Plans are that the Main hall Christmas tree be lighted during the songfest.

Pair Found Guilty Of Miles Murder

Miles City, Dec. 12—(P)—A district court jury in Miles City has found Mrs. Evelyn Williams—"Jerry, the Wildcat"—Donges, and Tom LaFave guilty of first degree murder in the September 11th beating and robbery of a LeMars, Iowa, ranchhand.

The jury of seven men and five women returned the verdict at 4:30 this afternoon and recommended leniency for the two Miles City teen-agers.

Mrs. Donges is 17 and LaFave is 16. The case went to the jurors 24 hours ago following an eight-day trial.

Sentence will be pronounced December 17th at 10 a.m. Conviction of first degree murder in Montana carries a penalty of death or life imprisonment.

Mrs. Donges and LaFave showed no emotion when the jury foreman read the verdict.

Tomorrow's Convo Features 'Messiah'

The University chorus, orchestra, and seven soloists will present the Christmas portion of Handel's "The Messiah" at a convocation tomorrow morning at 9:40 in the Student Union auditorium.

Sunday evening, the combined choral groups and the symphony orchestra will present a program of Christmas music in three parts in the Student Union auditorium, of which "The Messiah" will be the third and final part.

Both programs will be under the direction of Lloyd Oakland, associate professor of music. Eugene Andrie, assistant professor of music, will conduct the symphony orchestra, which will play the accompaniment for the two programs.

Seven Soloists

The seven soloists at tomorrow's convocation will include: sopranos—Jeanne Couture, Arlee, and Anna Jane Caldwell, Dillon; altos—Patricia Fraher, Mobridge, S. D., and Dolores Gilskey, Lewistown; tenor—Robert Hoyem, Missoula; and basses—Lane Justus, Bozeman, and James Cole, Missoula.

In previous years, the University choral groups and symphony orchestra presented a series of Christmas songs at the Friday convocation prior to their Sunday night program. But this year, according to Oakland, it was decided to present the Christmas portion of "The Messiah" at the convocation to allow those students to hear it who could not attend the Sunday evening program.

"The Messiah" is regarded as one of the greatest oratorios ever written. An oratorio is a dramatic text or poem, usually founded on some Scripture theme, set to music for choruses and solo voices with an orchestral accompaniment, but without action, scenery, or costume. The name seems to be derived from the oratory of the churches in which it had its beginning.

"The Messiah" depicts the entire life of Christ, but only the Christmas portion—the birth of Christ—will be presented at the Friday convocation.

Oakland's Music Background

Lloyd Oakland, who is in charge of the direction of the two programs, has had many years' experience in music education. Prior to his appointment to the MSU faculty this fall, Oakland had been a guest instructor here for five summer quarters, teaching graduate classes.

Oakland received his master of music degree at Northwestern university, and since has taught and directed music at high schools and colleges in the Midwest and West.

He was director of music at high schools in Arlington, S. D., Angola, Ind., and Great Falls, Mont. He was professor of music education at Cornell college in Mount Vernon, Iowa, and has been guest instructor at Indiana university, University of Southern California.

Robert Ozais Miller ...

Robert Miller, 58, Shelburne Falls, Mass., has been a secretary, engineer, farmer, salesman, writer, prospector, veteran, and is now a student of political science and journalism. During his prospecting days in the Northwest territory he netted $3,000 "every other day." Photo by Hewett. (See story on page two.)

Another Shaggy Dog Story

From the male viewpoint of maintaining a satisfactory appearance, one of the gripes most commonly aired is that of keeping their unruly coiffures well trimmed at today's prices for haircuts.

Although a lot of planning has been done of late on how to improve student services, such as a post office sub-station and the construction of a year-round ice skating rink, no one has yet hit upon the idea of installing barber shop facilities on campus.

The price of a haircut represents almost two hours work if a student is employed part-time in university work, or to put it in an even more degrading manner, it represents five bottles of beer or a couple of movies—with popcorn.

Yet, an average barber can cut three heads of hair an hour and probably more, depending upon the individual barber. At $1.25 per shearing, a two-chair shop probably grosses about $300 a week. Multiply that by four and it's over $1,000 a month. Take out for salaries, linen, and stick-em-down, and it still leaves a profitable margin.

Not all of the 1,000-odd shaggy males could be persuaded to switch from their present barbers. In addition to liking the way they cut hair, the trimmer's accompanying fishing stories may be too enticing to risk getting a silent barber in the Student Union. The magazine selection may be better, too, at the old place, but a shop in the Student Union could support itself and probably show a sizeable profit.

Even though the price itself could not be lowered due to local union regulations, it would provide a convenient service to students.—Dick Smith

HISTORY PROF WRITES ON EXAMS, HONORARIES

Dear Editor:

I believe I may have a bit to contribute to the controversies on final examinations for graduating seniors and on the honorary problem.

Last year the subject of final examinations was brought up in at least two faculty meetings, was discussed and clarified, and was then passed by a majority vote of the faculty present. Except in its initiation, this was not the work of any faculty committee or of the administration, and it was not adopted without reasonable consideration. When first introduced for discussion the proposal met with objections on the grounds that it would be inequitable.

At the second meeting the protests were again raised and the chairman explained that though the problem of equality of treatment was involved incidentally, the basic issue was entirely different. Basically, all students, regardless of class or status, should take all final examinations. That has been a faculty decision of several years' standing.

However, whenever a commencement program is being set up, with printed lists of graduates, it seems necessary to get a final processing of records of graduating seniors well in advance of the commencement date. This could not be done without excusing the graduates from final examinations, but it was the circumstances, not the question of discrimination, which resulted in the final decision.

If there was to be a commencement at the end of each quarter, there would have to be exemptions for all graduating seniors; if there were no commencements ever scheduled, there would be no exemptions. Different circumstances seemed to call for different policies. After this explanation the proposal was passed by a large majority, but there were forceful negative votes.

Concerning the honorary racket as a way of making easy money, I think your protests are a bit late, for the problem has been recognized for years. Though most of us are gullible part of the time, it is an important mark of an educated person to develop caution and skepticism. If does appear ridiculous to state that a C average is a mark of distinction or that societies basing their requirements on such standards are "honorary," regardless of what good they may do otherwise. On the other hand, it is difficult to define exactly the

Letters Sent Seeking Funds

Over 2,300 letters were sent out last week by the School of Religion in an effort to alleviate its most pressing problem, money, the Rev. Bruce K. Wood, director, said yesterday.

A letter written by Carl E. Dragstedt, local clothing merchant, was sent to parents of religion students, to organizations, and to leading citizens. It describes the financial condition of the Montana School of Religion as "without funds and already obligating ourselves for salaries for the past few months to instructors." The Rev. Wood and his wife, the Rev. Clara C. Wood, have not been paid since July.

"We are now working on a school year basis and with the fiscal year ending June 30," Mr. Dragstedt said. This was the board of directors' plan to meet existing and future financial problems. The money will be spread out over the entire year. The board of directors is a voluntary group.

"Two years ago we were able to get the Reverend Wood and his wife to take the job of directing the religion school, established in 1924," Mr. Dragstedt said. "They are both specially trained in this work and have had several years' teaching experience. They had just completed a relief assignment in Poland, and I have a feeling that this new job had a great appeal after a bare subsistence in war-torn Poland."

COMEDIAN ESCAPES DEATH

Fort Benning, Ga. Dec. 12.—(AP)—Comedian Jerry Lewis almost lost his life yesterday while kidding around with parachute equipment here. Lewis jokingly tangled parachute lines around his neck at a practice platform. He became entangled in a leap, then barely managed to swing back on the platform, and ease the ropes from his neck.

line where standards are high enough to make the word "honorary" meaningful.

One attempt to prevent racketeering at the expense of the gullible was the founding of the Association of College Honor Societies in 1925. For the past quarter century the ACHS has worked out minimum standards and maximum costs for membership and has tried to set standards for recruiting of members.

All qualified honoraries are not members of ACHS, but the impulse given by Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi to the association has had some beneficial effects. While potentially still a menace, the honorary racket is at least under study and some control.

If those contacted for money were a bit skeptical of "worthy" causes and a bit cautious about paying out good money to questionable persons or organizations there would probably be fewer rackets. I am sure that there are several honoraries which merit use of the term.

Sincerely,
Eugene K. Chamberlin

Robert Miller, 58; Montana Collegian

You're never too old to go to MSU. That's the thinking of 58-year-old Robert Ozias Miller, a special student in political science and journalism from Shelburne Falls, Mass. He is going to the University on the GI bill of rights.

Miller has a background as unusual as his middle name. In his 58 short years (and he emphatically says they've been short), Miller has been a private secretary, mining engineer, farmer, salesman, student, writer, prospector, and a veteran of two world wars.

It all began back in Franklin county, Mass., in 1893, when Miller was born into a rural family of six. He gave up high school to help on his father's farm.

Wanted to Become a Doctor

Miller's parents wanted him to become a lawyer; Miller wanted to be a doctor. He became neither, but made up for it by engaging in an interesting variety of others. He was tutored by Fred O. Darling, a classmate of William H. Taft.

Then, Miller studied law under Dana Malone, attorney general of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He became Malone's private secretary for two years. It was under the tutelage of the Rev. Elisha Hooper, a Methodist minister from England, that Miller's ambition was fired to become a mining engineer.

Entered Service

He entered officer's training school in Plattsburg, N. Y., during the latter part of World War I and served only a short while. Before he was sent overseas the armistice was signed.

After marrying for the first time (he's married twice since, and is now single) Miller became a flour salesman for the New England division of the Pillsbury Flour company.

Studied Mining

He then studied mining engineering and geology for two and one-half years as a special student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Atlantic Refining company in Philadelphia later asked him to join its staff as a petroleum research chemist to which he consented.

Made Money Prospecting

Prospecting captured his fancy during the early depression years, so he flew to Yellowknife in the Northwest territory and staked out a gold claim. Miller said he made some money on that expedition, but later he and three other fellows netted $3,000 every other day on a nugget stake in northern British Columbia.

Staked Gold Claim

This fall, he staked a new gold claim near McBride, B. C., which he says should net him "a few thousand." He drives a 1951 Oldsmobile Rocket "88" and is planning to buy a Cadillac soon, he said.

Miller enlisted in the armed forces in 1942 and spent another term as an intelligence officer during World War II. He was critically wounded by shrapnel in the North African campaign which gave him a fractured skull, back injuries, and a gangrened left arm which almost had to be amputated. The battle wound also left a deep, permanent scar on his forehead.

Attended School of Mines

He entered MSU last winter from the School of Mines at Butte where he studied mathematics. His freshman classmates, who said he was an original Enzo Pinza, elected him president of their group.

"My idea of going to school is to get an education, not necessarily a diploma as most of my younger colleagues have as their only goal here. Course, I would like a diploma, too," he said. He commented that university co-eds are here to get a "backlog of security," and hinted that the "backlog" included a man.

CORRECTION

Because of some mixup on the copy desk, the word "not" was added to a sentence in Tom Ambrose's letter yesterday, thereby changing its meaning considerably.

The second paragraph should, of course, have read "Mr. Smith's letter did correct some regrettable errors in Burton Warren's editorial of last Tuesday . . ."

Grizzly Gab

by
LEW KEIM

January 5, 1952, will mark a new chapter in Montana basketball history; the Grizzlies make their first debut in the tough Skyline conference against the Utah State Aggies. A 14 game conference schedule awaits the Grizzlies with seven home games which will provide Grizzly fans with plenty of top notch basketball. The complete Grizzly schedule boasts 26 games—15 away and 11 at home.

Idaho's Vandals provided the first two games of the schedule and also two defeats. However, the Vandals knew they had played a tough foe. Fourth quarter doldrums and lack of height were the Grizzlies' shortcomings. In the second game of the opening series the Grizzlies tried to make up for their lack of height as compared with the Vandals, by constant checking the Vandals trio of centers. But they possibly overchecked the hardwood skyscrapers, as five Grizzlies fouled out in the effort.

Utah State Aggies will have played 37 hoop contests by the end of their season in March. Although their publicity folder lists only a 30 game season, the Aggies toured Mexico in September and played seven "warm up" games. They won six and lost one. Before they meet the Grizzlies, they take on 12 teams in preparation for the Skyline season.

Montana Collegians tangle with the renowned Harlem Globe Trotters in the University gym Dec. 28. The Collegians, composed mainly of former Grizzlies, are donating the proceeds from their games to the Grizzly athletic scholarship fund. This kind of spirit could well be demonstrated more among the alumni of MSU. The majority of alumni harp about Grizzly defeats, but do practically nothing to help, as compared with other Skyline schools.

If the Grizzlies are to compete on a par with their Skyline competitors, they need more money. But maybe a more feasible solution would be to bring college athletics back to reason and an amateur situation. It could and should be done. At least before college athletic stock is sold on Wall Street.

When the Grizzlies tangle with the Gonzaga Bulldogs in Kalispell Dec. 27, it will be the first time a Grizzly varsity squad in any sport has played there.

Cope Is Coaching Air Force Squad

Bob Cope '50 has been named coach of the Suffolk Air Force base basketball team, according to a recent article in the Air Force Times.

Cope, a former Grizzly basketball, track, and baseball star, is also filling the center spot on the Suffolk five. In 1949 he was chosen for the All-American basketball team by the Helms Athletic foundation of Los Angeles.

Now a private first class, Cope entered the air force last spring. During his four years with the Grizzly hoop squad, Cope scored 1,808 points, the 15th highest total in college history.

In baseball he is under contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers and is assigned to the Santa Barbara, Calif., State league.

J-School Still Kegler Kings

The Journalism faculty bowling team increased its lead Tuesday night as they rambled over the Physical Education five for three straight games.

Business Administration kept second place by defeating Liberal Arts in two of the three game series.

Although Military Science keggers walked away with many individual and team honors for the evening, their team dropped two games to the Humanities squad. The Military men hit 2,406 pins for high team series and also collected the high single game team score with 842 pins.

The honor of coping high individual series was closely contested. Prof. R. B. Brunson won out however, by one pin. He edged M/Sgt. E. J. Allen with a 537 score to Allen's 536.

Prof. J. E. Dew rolled the high game of the night with a 204 score. Allen played second fiddle again with 200 pins.

Administration won two of three games from the Botany-Chemistry team.

Present standings—	Won	Lost
Journalism	22	8
Business Administration	20	10
Military Science	17	13
Botany-Chemistry	16	14
Administration	13	17

ROTC Rifle Team Seeks First Win

The ROTC rifle team will fire in their fifth match in the Southwestern Montana league when they meet the team from St. Ignace at the ROTC range tonight.

The ROTC squad has lost all four of their matches with teams in the civilian league. Frenchtown, Victor, Missoula Moose, and Hellgate have defeated the ROTC team.

Phi Deltas Lead Volleyball League

Phi Delta Theta continued to dominate the intramural volleyball competition Tuesday night as they handed Phi Sigma Kappa and their first place hopes a defeat. Sigma Chi moved into second place by dropping Alpha Tau Omega.

Sigma Nu pushed Sigma Alpha Epsilon further down in the standings with a decisive win. The Sooners caught fire and rolled over the Theta Chis and won by forfeit from the Bear Paws.

Wesley foundation and the PSK's also received forfeits from Bear Paws and Jumbo hall respectively.

Intramural director George Cross has ruled Jumbo hall, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and the Bear Paws ineligible for further competition. The three teams were ruled ineligible because they had forfeited two games.

Light Sessions For Silvertip Cagers Today

Grizzly Coach "Jiggs" Dahlberg put his charges through light workouts yesterday and plans to do the same today. He says the Grizzlies looked even better in the second Idaho game than they did in the first; but that the loss of five men in final quarter proved defeat.

"Ed Anderson and Bud Bellis played their best basketball so far this season in the second game," Dahlberg said. The Grizzlies had trouble at the foul line again as they only connected on 14 of 28 free shots. In the first Vandal tilt they hit only 20 of 41.

The Grizzlies will use the same style of offense they used against the Vandals in trying for their first win against the tall Washington State Cougars. Dahlberg says, "even though the Cougars lost their first three games they have a good potential team. They will compare with Idaho in both height and ability."

The 1949-50 edition of Grizzly hoopsters hold 12 of the 20 existing Grizzly hoop records.

'Little Armistice' Broken By Allied Troop Attack

Tokyo, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Allied troops have broken the "little armistice" in Korea with an attack on the western front.

An announcement by General Ridgway's headquarters says the attack has a "limited objective." The announcement also reports "considerable enemy opposition."

Dispatches from the front say UN infantrymen, supported by tanks, are fighting Chinese Reds in hand-to-hand battles.

The attack shattered the relative quiet of the last 17 days along the 145-mile front. It is the first strong drive since the cease-fire line agreement was signed 14 days ago. Before this, there were only patrol skirmishes and artillery duels.

There was relatively little action along other fronts. But, in central Korea, special Allied volunteer patrols are reported operating in fast, hard-hitting raids to find out what the Reds are doing.

Built from 3000 B.C. to 1800 B.C., the pyramids were the monumental tombs of Egyptian pharaohs. The largest pyramid is located at Gizeh, near Cairo.

Social Events For Winter Scheduled

Dates for social events for spring quarter are scheduled for the weekend nights but activities for any given week will be posted on a calendar in the dean's office according to Audrey Olson, Billings, social committee chairman.

Next quarter, social chairmen of the organizations and living groups are not to make arrangements for their functions until the dates for the functions are cleared through the social committee, Miss Olson said.

This is the winter quarter social calendar for 1952:

Friday, Jan. 11—Bozeman VFW vs. Montana Collegians.

Saturday, Jan. 12—Bozeman VFW vs. Montana Collegians.
